

Redefining Opportunities

Make a Difference

Over the next decade, a significant proportion of Veterans Affairs employees will retire. That means lots of employment choices for you at entry and mid-level positions. That also means tremendous opportunities for upward mobility and continuing education.

Talented, quick-thinking and mobile people are required at both the department's head office in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, and at regional and district offices across Canada. If you meet the qualifications, we're interested in you!

Wanted: The Best and Brightest!

The majority of positions for which we are hiring require post-secondary education—usually a university degree. While some job descriptions specify that work experience is required, we also offer several mentoring programs to help you grow into a skilled professional. We also offer entry-level positions in several disciplines, with training opportunities so that you can develop the necessary skills to advance.

What We Offer

The federal public service is built on values that are important to all Canadians, and is recognized world-wide for its excellence. We offer employees an excellent compensation and benefits package, including:

- Competitive salaries.
- Comprehensive medical and dental benefits.
- Excellent pension plan.
- Generous vacation and leave time.
- Flexible work arrangements.
- Attractive educational and career advancement opportunities.

Veterans Affairs is committed to building a skilled, diverse workforce that represents the public it serves.

For more information on career opportunities with Veterans Affairs, visit us at www.vac-acc.gc.ca.

This publication is available upon request in multiple formats.